The School of Business, Amrita University, Coimbatore, has earned the distinction of being the only Indian institution so far to find a place in the prestigious United Nations Sustainable Literacy Test (Sulitest), which evaluates knowledge about the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) among students in higher education, a press release from the university said.

For over four years now, over 1,000 MBA students of Amrita have undertaken the respective test and have demonstrated the effectiveness of 'Sulitest' as an excellent learning tool integrated well into the course curriculum.

Amrita School of Business has figured prominently in the annual report released by United Nations on the basis of the number of tests taken per academic organisation, according to its chairman, Dr Raghu Raman, who represented Amrita University at the annual event at the UN.

In 2019, the university improved its position by 10 notches to the top 20 institutes. Students at Amrita School of Business have been active users of several learning modules of 'Sulitest'. Students use the test as an innovative tool to engage faculty and students in its quest to create awareness about the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the 169 well-defined targets aimed at transforming our world.

Dr Sanjay Banerji, professor emeritus school of business, Coimbatore underscored the significant synergies between the university's mission and the spirit of UN SDGs.
