'Traumax 2013' begins today

By Express News Service - KOCHI | 16th July 2013 11:46 AM

The department of Centre for Digital Health, General Surgery, Anaesthesiology, Neurosurgery and Craniomaxillofacial surgery at Amrita Institute of Medical Sciences will jointly organise a workshop on craniofacial trauma 'Traumax 2013' from July 16 to 20 at Centre for Digital Health (Amrita Clinical Skill Simulation Centre).

The workshop will consists of interactive lectures, case scenarios, short videos and role plays with respect to primary trauma life support, diagnosis and management of head injury, conduct of anaesthesia, and definitive care in craniofacial trauma.

The focus of the modules on second day is on the must-know in pre anaesthetic workups, intra operative anaesthetic care and post-operative ICU care. There will be a half day hands -on module dedicated to skill development on basic and advanced life support and various suturing techniques.

The modules on definitive management of craniofacial trauma will deal with diagnosis and management of craniofacial trauma with the aid of case discussions and videos.

Dr Prem Nair, medical director and Dr Prathapan Nair, principal, Amrita School of Medicine will address the seminar.
